

JENKINS OVERRULED
BY A HIGHER COURTFAMOUS INJUNCTION IN PART REVERSED.

Important Decision of the United States Court of Appeals—Employers Could Not Be Enjoined From Quitting Work—Justice Harlan Delivers an Opinion on the Northern Pacific Case.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Judge Jenkins' famous strike injunction was overruled yesterday by the United States circuit court of appeals, and the cause was remanded with directions to strike out from the restraining order of the court the clause which aroused the country when the order was issued and which resulted in the Roatner investigating committee of congress.

The intervenors, representing the leading labor organizations of the country, asked that two sections of the injunction be eliminated. The court of appeals decided that no court could compel a man or a body of men from quitting individually or in a body the service of an employer. The court said that Judge Jenkins had exceeded his powers when he enjoined the employees of the receivers of the Northern Pacific railroad company "from quitting the service of said receivers, with or without notice, so as to cripple the property and prevent or hinder the operation of said railroad."

It, however, held that the section should stand in which the men were prohibited "from combining and conspiring to quit, with or without notice, the service of said receivers, with the object or intent of crippling the property in their custody, or embarrassing the operation of said railroad."

The decision was considered by the lawyers who packed the court room as one of the most important opinions delivered in the United States in a decade. It defines the status before the law of labor organizations in their conduct of strikes and affirms the powers of courts of equity to interfere by injunction when there is reason to believe that the law will be violated.

It holds that men may withdraw in a body from the service of an employer, using, however, neither force, threats, persecution nor intimidation toward employees who do not join them, nor must they use any "device" to molest, hinder, alarm or interfere with others who desire to take their places.

Justice Harlan of the Supreme court delivered the opinion. Sitting with him were Judges Woods, Bunn, Grosscup and Jenkins. The last named sat with his eyes fixed upon Justice Harlan as the latter read the opinion reviewing the circuit judge's action.

The audience which listened to the reading of the opinion was a most distinguished one. Ex-President Harrison and his partner, Mr. Elam, sat side by side well up toward the bench. After disposing of other cases, in which the findings of the court were merely announced by Judges Woods and Jenkins, Justice Harlan began the reading of the opinion in the case of P. M. Arthur, et al., against Thomas F. Oakes, Henry C. Payne and Henry C. Kouse, receivers of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, as this celebrated cause is known on the docket.

The opinion concluded by holding that the act of congress of July 2, 1890, known as the interstate commerce act, had no bearing on the question before the court. The order of Judge Jenkins is reversed in part and the cause is remanded with directions to sustain the motion to strike out to the extent indicated in the opinion.

The two most important parts of the decision handed down by Justice Harlan are as follows:

"The rule, we think, is without exception that equity will not compel the actual, affirmative performance by an employee of merely personal service any more than it will compel an employer to retain in his personal service one who, no matter for what cause, is not acceptable to him for service of that character. The right of an employee engaged to perform personal services to quit that service rests upon the same basis as the right of an employer to discharge him from further personal service. If the quitting in the one case or the discharging in the other is in violation of the contract between the parties, the one injured by the breach has his action for damages, and a court of equity will not, indirectly or negatively by means of an injunction restraining the violation of the contract, compel the affirmative performance from day to day or the affirmative acceptance of merely personal services. Relief of that character has always been regarded as impracticable."

Of the conspiracy aspect of the case the decision says: "The combinations or conspiracies which the law does not tolerate are of a different character. According to the principles of the common law, a conspiracy upon the part of two or more persons with the intent by their combined power to wrong others or to prejudice the rights of the public is in itself illegal although nothing be actually done in execution of such conspiracy. This doctrine is fundamental in our jurisprudence. So a combination or conspiracy to procure an employee or body of employees to quit service in violation of the contract of service would be unlawful, and in a proper case might be enjoined if the injury threatened would be irreparable at law. It is one thing for a single individual or for several individuals each acting upon his own responsibility and not in co-operation with others, to form the purpose of inflicting actual injury upon the property or rights of others. It is quite a different thing if the eye of the law for many persons to combine or conspire together with the intent not simply of asserting their rights or of accomplishing lawful ends by peaceable methods, but of employing their united energies to injure others or the public. An intent upon the part of a single person to injure the rights of others or of the public is not in itself a wrong of which the law will take cognizance, unless some injurious act be done in execution of the unlawful intent. But a combination of two or more persons with such an intent and under circumstances that give them when so combined a power to do an injury they would not possess as individuals acting singly has always been recognized as in itself wrongful and illegal."

Metz and Strasburg Must Be Returned to their Mother Country Before Any Reconciliation Can Be Thought Of—Trouble Over the English Policy in Egypt.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The daily newspaper La Patrie, has a flaming article to-day on the report that Emperor William will visit Paris during the next expedition. The paper declares that the German emperor will never be suffered to enter Paris until he shall have returned Metz and Strasburg to France. The Figaro says that M. de Crais, the French ambassador at London, has returned from that city much discouraged and that the belief gains ground that he has been entirely unsuccessful. The Figaro adds:

"Our relations with Great Britain for some time have been of a difficult nature. The truth is, the discussion of the Egyptian question is no longer ventured upon between Paris and London."

The Paris Temps, as already cabled, announced to-day that M. de Crais has resigned and that he will be succeeded by Baron de Courcet, who was president of the Behring sea tribunal of arbitration.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—The emperor of China is likely to be dethroned in favor of Prince Kung's son, who will treat with the Japanese. Li Hung Chang has been superseded in supreme command by Sang Tseng. Chang has retired to the province of Pao Ting Tow. His army is in distrust. Despatches received here from Tien Tsin say that private advices have reached the latter city from Peking warning all foreigners from proceeding to the capital. The road and waterways from Tung Chow to Peking are lined with soldiers who are hostile to all Europeans. Several British residents of Peking have been assaulted, including Mr. Tours, interpreter of the British legation, Dr. Dudgeon, and others who were journeying south. It is rumored that the British steamer Irene, which arrived at Tien Tsin on Sept. 25 from Shanghai, having on board a number of Maxim rapid-firing guns and a quantity of ammunition for the Chinese, has infringed the neutrality laws. The representatives of the British government are understood to be taking action in the matter.

WICHITA HIT BY A CYCLONE.

Two Men Said to Be Dead—Wreck Strawa Along the Path.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 2.—The northern part of the city was swept last night by a tornado. Buildings of all kinds were demolished, unroofed, twisted out of shape, and removed from their foundations, and it is reported two unknown men were killed. In all, some twenty-five or thirty substantial buildings, besides innumerable barns and outhouses, were demolished or injured in a greater or less degree.

The twister came from the southwest, as they always do, and it first struck the city at Wichita and Tenth streets, where it unroofed and tore out the side of a street car barn. The Missouri Pacific depot at Twelfth and Main streets, containing Supt. Webb's office and a large force of clerks and employees, was the next point of attack, and this was entirely unroofed and the interior walls twisted out of place, yet not a man was injured. A few yards off the watchman at a crossing was in his box, which was lifted up and pitched down two rods away without doing the inmate any damage. From here the wind jumped to Lawrence avenue and Twelfth street, picking up a tree here and there and knocking over a few light buildings. It cut down a long row of magnificent trees without touching the residence, a few yards away, in front of which they stood, and passed within ten feet of Gov. Lewelling's home. Another street car barn was overturned at Fifteenth street and Fifth avenue, and this caught fire, and together with some cars, was entirely consumed.

Around each of these points at which the tornado dipped residences were overturned and outbuildings were carried away. Buildings were twisted into all kinds of shape and were tossed about in a rough manner and it is a marvel how the occupants escaped. The wires are down in all directions, so no news can be obtained from the country, but it is probable considerable damage was done both southwest and northeast of here.

During the storm a boy named Fitzgibbons was killed by lightning. This is the first tornado that has ever struck Wichita, but it shatters the old Indian fable that a tornado never strikes at the confluence of two streams.

LEAVES WAKE OF DISASTER.

Two Three-Masted Schooners Reported in the Path of the Storm.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—A series of disasters stretching out along the Atlantic coast is reported in the wake of the hurricane now raging somewhere in the transatlantic track. Apparently the most disastrous were those of the three-masted schooners Adelaide Alcott and William T. Parker. The Alcott was wrecked here and aft. All the hatches were stove in and the hold was awash on the decks. The direction and distance of the hurricane led most of the storm bound vessels in the harbor to hoist anchor and proceed to sea. The number of vessels detained may be estimated by the fact that no less than eighty-eight schooners sailed during the day.

THROUGH THE HURRICANE.

The Knickerbocker carried thirty first cabin and thirty steerage passengers.

This seems to be a great town for conventions.

THIEVES LOOT AN EXPRESS CAR
Bold Work in Arizona—Southern Pacific Passenger Train Held Up.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 2.—At 12:15 o'clock yesterday morning east-bound Southern Pacific train was held up one and a half miles east of Maricopa by three men. One of the robbers rode on the blind baggage out of Maricopa, while the other two flagged the train. As it slackened up the fellow aboard passed quickly into the engine cab, and with two revolvers forced Engineer Holiday and Fireman Martin to descend, uncouple the engine and proceed ahead of the train for about three-quarters of a mile.

In the meantime one masked robber had entered the express car, while the other stood guard outside. No shots were fired, nor were the passengers alarmed while the robbery was in progress.

The engineer and fireman were walked back ahead of robber No. 1 to the express car, where they arrived about the time the other two were ready to depart.

All three then mounted horses, which were tied near by, and struck out in a southerly direction toward the Mexican line, which is fifty miles from the track.

The Wells-Fargo messenger reports that they got $150, but there is a current report that the robbers got away with $20,000 in gold. Their trail was struck early this morning by Sheriff Drais of Pinal and Murphy of Maricopa, accompanied by Deputies Widemer and Brothers.

Soon they came upon a camp which the robbers had hastily abandoned. There they found three rifles and three horses. Not long after this they overhauled one of the bandits, whom they called upon to throw up his hands. Instead he turned upon the officers and fired, but a charge of buckshot from the sheriff's gun brought him to the ground. The prisoner, whose name is Frank Armour, was brought here, and it is believed he will recover.

SHATTERS A BURGLAR PROOF SAFE.

Nitro Glycerine Works Havoc in an Iowa Bank—Robbers Escape.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Oct. 2.—A guaranteed burglar proof safe in the fireproof vaults of the State bank of Mediapolis, this county, was blown almost to atoms yesterday morning by a tremendous charge of nitro glycerine. The cracksmen forced the vault locks without difficulty. The safe contained $5,000 in gold coin, $800 in paper currency, $400 in silver coin and $2,600 in school district bonds payable to bearer. The paper money was torn into little bits and the coin was battered and bent and scattered to the four winds. Nineteen of the bonds have been recovered intact, the rest being destroyed or stolen. Fifteen hundred dollars in the battered coin was recovered. It is presumed the burglars got the rest. Three hours after the discovery of the robbery the bank was transacting business. The robbers made their escape on a stolen handcar, which was abandoned in the ditch two miles north of Burlington. The robbed bank is chartered by the state and has a capital of $25,000. It is the impression that local desperadoes under the leadership of some more experienced person had the job in hand. Part of a band of amateur crooks are in jail for store breaking and it is believed those at liberty assisted in the safe cracking.

Our city will offer advantages for such a convention and we hope your stay with us will be pleasant and prove of lasting benefit. We know that such will be the result to ourselves. We are still a young association among the Wisconsin brotherhood, and while we feel greatly encouraged in the work here so far, yet we are in a very critical period of our life. We have a fine building in process of erection now nearing completion, but it has resulted from a hard struggle which is not yet over.

"At just this time the coming into our midst of this convention will, we believe prove the providential means of establishing the Janesville Association as a permanent institution of the city through the instruction and encouragement of this band of praying men. Therefore, both because we trust we can do you good, and because we know that we shall receive good, we shall with open hearts and homes welcome you all to our city."

George Prescott, of the Democratic State Ticket, Once Lived Here.

George Prescott, the democratic candidate for railroad commissioner, is in the city today, renewing acquaintances. Mr. Prescott was one of the first conductors on the Milwaukee & Mississippi railway, now the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and for a time Janesville was his home. He was a conductor when the Janesville depot was located on the bluff above the gas house and before the road crossed Rock river at this point. He also ran a train from Prairie du Chien to Chicago, via Janesville, in connection with the Mississippi river boats, the "War Eagle," "Ocean Wave," and other old time passenger boats. Mr. Prescott retired from railroading some years ago and settled at Greenfield, near Milwaukee. The "roster" jobbers, however, found him, and under the hallucination that his great popularity among veteran railway men would help their cause, placed his name on the ticket for railway commissioner.

DRUGGIST UNDER ARREST.

Dr. Schallern of Ripon Alleged Not To Have Been Registered.

On complaint of E. B. Heimstreet, secretary of the state board of pharmacy, Dr. Ottmar Schallern, of Ripon, was summoned to Fond du Lac, to answer to a charge of conducting a drug store without being registered. The case was called before Justice Parsons of Fond du Lac, and on request of defendant the case was adjourned until October 15. Dr. Schallern has been in the drug business in Ripon for twenty years, and is a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago, and the action of the secretary of the board of pharmacy in this case is thought to be for the purpose of forcing a test case in the matter of a general registration.

THE RIDE TO DEATH WAS BEGUN HERE.

FIVE BOY TRAMPS FROM JANESVILLE KILLED.

The Victims of the Woodstock Accident Were Fleeing From the Janesville Officers and Boarded the Ill Fated Train in the Bower City Yards.

Into the jaws of death seven young men crawled in the Janesville yards of the Chicago & Northwestern Saturday night and but two live to tell the tale.

The lumber upon which they slept was both their bier and the instrument of their destruction.

Tramps they were, and upon reaching this city they made plans to leave at once as they knew full well the reputation of the Janesville officers.

Conductor Lewis Anderson's freight train, ready to pull out for Chicago, stood on a siding. The third car from the caboose was loaded with lumber and the door was unlocked. Into this car these seven men crawled and stretching out on the boards which nearly filled the car they went to sleep. It was the sleep of death.

Some hours later they were taken from the car so mangled that they were hardly recognizable. They dead are:

LITTLE, BERT, Freeport, Ill.
TYRRELL, DAVID, Mount Morris, Ill.
UNKNOWN BOY, Lincoln, Neb.
UNKNOWN MAN, said to be "Milwaukee Eddie."

The Injured are:

GRADY, JOSEPH, Fall River Mass., leg broken, back injured and left wrist chewed by one of the boys in his death struggle, the latter dying with his head pinned by the lumber to Grady's breast.

NEWMAN, SAM, 13 years old, Freeport.

Killed While They Slumbered.

While the "hobos" slept, Conductor Anderson came from the freight office with his orders, and the engineer pulled out. All went well until the train reached Grover's crossing, a mile west of Woodstock, and then there was a crash that sounded a death knell. The rear axle of the lumber car, in which the tramps rode, had broken, and the car together with the two following it, went into the ditch. The shock sent the lumber against the roof of the car with a mighty rush, and five lives were crushed out in an instant. Joseph Grady was one who escaped. Against his breast and held with an iron grip by a heavy timber, lay one of the boys struggling against death. Grady's wrist lay over the lad's mouth, and in the throes of mortal agony the youth buried his teeth in his companion's arm. Both were wedged in so tightly that neither could stir, and half a dozen times Grady felt his wrist chewed by the dying boy. His calls acquainted the train crew with the fact that someone was hurt and they hastened to the work of rescue. It was a hard job to move the lumber in the small space that they had to work in, but it was finally finished and the injured man and the mangled bodies of the dead were pulled from the bloodstained pile of 4x10 green planks.

Grady Told the Story

Grady was most dangerously hurt, as his leg was broken and his back was injured. He said he had been on the road for fourteen years and corroborated the statement of a Janesville man that the ill-fated seven had boarded the freight train at Janesville. The engineer at once cut the locomotive from the train and ran to Woodstock, and reported the accident. Deputy Coroner W. Cook, with several railroad men, immediately repaired to the scene of the wreck and the dead and the injured were taken to Woodstock where the five dead bodies being laid side by side on the floor of the fire engine-room. The two injured men were given quarters on cots in the city jail and their wounds attended by Doctors Anderson and Cook. The faces of the dead were crushed almost to a pulp and their bodies frightfully bruised by the heavy timbers. The coroner at once held an inquest in which the jury, after hearing the evidence, rendered a verdict that the deceased "came to their death by being crushed under a load of lumber while stealing a ride on the Northwestern Railway."

DISSIPATION KILLS.

Too Much Pleasure the Tendency of the Day.

We Exert Ourselves in Many Ways More Than We Ought—A Valuable Rule Which It Will Pay You to Follow.

There never was a time when diseases were so common as now. And we bring them on ourselves by careless living. The system cannot stand everything, and it will surely rebel in time. One of the most common ailments is rheumatism. It indicates bad blood and low vitality.

It may be caused by exposure, dissipation or overwork. It is a dangerous complaint to neglect as it often involves other organs, especially the heart. There is a way to be cured of it and all nervous and chronic diseases and it never fails to cure. Here is a letter giving positive proof of it. Mr. M. J. Frahill, a well known man of Waterbury, Vt., writes as follows:

"About three years ago I was attacked by severe rheumatism. It was so bad that when it took hold of me it made me drop down in my tracks, and would cause me most intense suffering. Whenever I was attacked by it I was confined to the house.

"I was fearfully worried over my condition and began to think I should never recover. I consulted eminent doctors, but got no permanent benefit from them. I saw Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised, and concluded to try it as I knew it was highly recommended.

MR. M. J. FRAHILL.

I am happy to say that since using his medicine I have had no return of my disease. The pains have all left me and I am entirely cured of all my troubles. That was over a year ago that I was cured and have had no return since. Thanks to Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy I am well and strong. It is a splendid medicine for it cures disease, and I heartily recommend it to everybody.

"Please publish this record of my wonderful cure for the good of others. I believe they can all be cured as I have been by this remedy. It is the best medicine I have ever seen."

Here is the most certain and positive cure for disease known. It is acknowledged so by all who have taken it, and why? Because it always cures them. Dr. Greene's nervura blood and nerve remedy is purely vegetable and harmless and is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York city. He is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

RAY BOOTH DOWNED BY A STEER CHASER

GREEN FARMER DEFEATED BY A MONROE SPRINTER.

Agriculturist Bradley's Overalls Were Patched But He Could Run Down a Cow and This Gave His Friends Confidence Enough to Back Him Successfully for $1,000.

You can't tell how fast a farmer boy can run till you have watched him chase a pig through the barn yard.

"Amen!" says Ray Booth, the Monroe sprinter.

Don't let yourself believe, however, that his backers used a word of that kind.

"That's what they said."

$ $ $ $ $

That's the symbol of the St. Paul sports. All the Monroe crowd had left were the blanks—in various forms.

Booth is the champion runner of Green county. He always came here to compete in the Scotch games, etc., his last race being the match at the Janesville track with Smith of Edgerton, which he won. On a farm not far from the Shullsburg mines there works a boy named Bradley. He was a good milker and his employer liked him.

Beat a Steer on Foot.

One day a brindled steer got loose from his pen and Bradley outran the beast and caught him. He didn't wear running shoes and his thighs were just plain overalls with a patch on the basement of them. But, oh, wasn't he a runner!

People who saw him beat the steer for one hundred rods, wanted a chance to back him with money and they got it. The Monroe crowd pinned their faith and their spare cash to Booth's coat tails and to Shullsburg they went. Bradley ran a hundred yards in 9 3/5 seconds, beating Booth by nine feet and lowering his record in the race with the steer by 2 1/2 seconds. The Monroe crowd had put up nearly a thousand dollars, which the Shullsburg men now own, and with pockets and contents empty, they had to return home.

"They were the sourest looking lot of 'sports' you ever saw," said one Janesville man who saw the performance, "and every man of them was 'broke.' They had 'gone wrong' on a good thing, one of them said tearfully, and thereupon he cast a dead bottle from him and sighed deeply."

TALMAGE'S SERMON ON SOCIAL ULCERS

DR. TALMAGE DENOUNCES THE WICKED DANCES.

They Are, He Says, the Avenues of Lust and Social Ruin, and Destruction Follow in Their Wake—A Most Remarkable Sermon.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 30, 1894.—Rev. Dr. Talmage, who is still absent on his round-the-world tour, has selected as the subject of to-day's sermon, through the press: "The Quick Feet," the text chosen being Matthew 14: vi: "When Herod's birthday was kept, the daughter of Herodias danced before them, and pleased Herod."

It is the anniversary of Herod's birthday. The palace is lighted. The highways leading thereto are all ablaze with the pomp of invited guests. Lords, captains, merchant princes, the mighty men of the land are coming to mingle in the festivities. The table is spread with all the luxuries that royal purveyors can gather. The guests, white-robed and anointed and perfumed, come in and sit at the table. Music! The jests evoke roars of laughter. Riddles are propounded. Repartee is indulged. Toasts are drunk. The brain is befogged. The wit rolls on into uproar and blasphemy. They are not satisfied yet. Turn on more light. Pour out more wine. Music! Sound all the trumpets. Clear the floor for a dance. Bring in Salome, the beautiful and accomplished princess. The door opens, and in bounds the dancer. The lords are enchanted. Stand back and make room for the brilliant gyrations. These men never saw such "poetry of motion." Their souls whirl in the reel and bound with the bounding feet. Herod forgets crown and throne and everything but the fascinations of Salome. All the magnificence of his realm is as nothing compared with the splendor that whirled on tiptoe before him. His body sways from side to side, corresponding with the motions of the enchantress. His soul is thrilled with the pulsations of the feet and bewitched with the taking postures and attitudes more and more amazing. After a while he sits in enchanted silence looking at the flashing, leaping, bounding beauty, and as the dance closes and the tinkling cymbals cease to clap and the thunders of applause that shook the palace begin to abate, the enchanted monarch swears to the princely performer: "Whatever thou shalt ask of me I will give it thee, to the half of my kingdom." Now, there was in the prison at that time a minister of the gospel by the name of John the Baptist, and he had been making a great deal of trouble by preaching some very plain sermons. He had denounced the sins of the king and brought down upon him the wrath of the females of the royal household. At the instigation of her mother, Salome takes advantage of the extravagant promise of the king and says, "Bring me the head of John the Baptist on a dinner plate."

Hark to the sound of feet outside the door and the clatter of swords. The executioners are returning from their awful errand. Open the door. They enter, and they present the platter to Salome. What is on this platter? A new glass of wine to continue the uproarious merriment? No. Something redder and costlier—the ghastly, bleeding head of John the Baptist, the death glare still in the eye, the locks dabbled with the gore, the features still distressed with the last agony. This woman, who had whirled so gracefully in the dance, bends over the awful burden without a shudder. She gloats over the blood, and with as much indifference as a waiting-maid might take a tray of empty glassware out of the room after an entertainment, Salome carries the severed head of John the Baptist, while all the banqueters shout with laughter and think it a good joke that in so easy and quick a way they have got rid of an earnest and outspoken minister of the Gospel.

Well, there is no harm in a birthday festival. All the kings from Pharaoh's time had celebrated such occasions, and why not Herod? No harm in kindling the lights. No harm in spreading the banquet. No harm in arousing music. But from the riot and wassail that closed the scene of that day every pure nature revolts. I am not at this time to discuss the old question is dancing right or wrong? but I am to discuss the question, does dancing take too much place and occupy too much time in modern society? and in my remarks I hope to carry with me the earnest conviction of all thoughtful persons, and I believe I will.

You will all admit, whatever you think of that style of amusement and exercise, that from many circles it has crowded out all intelligent conversation. You will also admit that it has made the condition of those who do not dance, either because they do not know how, or because they have not the health to endure it, or because through conscientious scruples they decline the exercise, very uncomfortable. You will also admit, all of you, that it has passed in many cases from an amusement to a dissipation, and you are easily able to understand the bewilderment of the educated Chinaman who, standing in the brilliant circle where there was dancing going on for four or five hours, and the guests seemed exhausted, turned to the proprietor of the house and said, "Why don't you allow your servants to do this for you?"

You are also willing to admit whatever be your idea in regard to the amusement I am speaking of, and whatever be your idea of the old-fashioned square dance and of many of the processional romps in which I can see no evil, the round dance is administrative of evil and ought to be driven out of all respectable circles

I am by natural temperament and religious theory opposed to the position taken by all those who are horrified at playfulness on the part of the young, and who think that all questions are decided—questions of decency and morals—by the position of the feet, while on the other hand, I can see nothing but ruin, temporal and eternal, for those who go into the dissipation of social life, dissipation which have already despoiled thousands of young men and women of all that is noble in character and useful in life.

Dancing is the graceful motion of the body adjusted by art to the sound and measures of musical instrument or of the human voice. All nations have danced. The ancients thought that Castor and Pollux taught the art to the Lacedaemonians. But whoever started it, all climes have adopted it. In ancient times they had the festival dance, the military dance, the mediatorial dance, the bacchanalian dance, and queens and lords swayed to and fro in the gardens, and the rough backwoodsman with this exercise awakened the echo of the forest. There is something in the sound of lively music to evoke the movement of the hand and foot, whether cultured or uncultured. Passing down the street we unconsciously keep step to the sound of the brass band, while the Christian in church with his foot beats time while his soul rises upon some great harmony. While this is so in civilized lands, the red men of the forest have their scalp dances, their green corn dances, their war dances. In ancient times the exercise was so utterly and completely depraved that the church anathematized it. The old Christian fathers expressed themselves most vehemently against it. St. Chrysostom says: "The feet were not given for dancing, but to walk modestly, not to leap impudently like c. mels." One of the dogmas of the ancient church reads: A dance is the devil's possession, and he that entereth into a dance entereth into his possession. As many paces as a man makes in dancing, so many paces does he make to hell. Elsewhere the old dogmas declared this: "The woman that singeth in the dance is the princess of the devil, and those that answer are her clerks, and the beholders are his friends, and the music is his bellows, and the fiddlers are the ministers of the devil. For as when hogs are strayed, if the hogherd call one all assemble together, so when the devil calleth one woman to sing in the dance, or to play on some musical instruments, presently all the dancers gather together." This indiscriminate and universal denunciation of the exercise came from the fact that it was utterly and completely depraved. But we are not to discuss the customs of the olden times, but customs now. We are not to take the evidence of the ancient fathers, but our own conscience, enlightened by the word of God, is to be the standard. Oh, bring no harsh criticism upon the young. I would not drive out from their soul the hilarities of life. I do not believe that the inhabitants of ancient Wales, when they stepped to the sound of the rustic harp, went down to ruin. I believe God intended the young people to laugh and romp and play. I do not believe God would have put exuberance in the soul and exuberance in the body if he had not intended they should in some wise exercise it and demonstrate it. If a mother join hands with her children and cross the floor to the sound of music, I see no harm. If a group of friends cross and re-cross the room to the sound of piano well played, I see no harm. If a company, all of whom are known to host and hostess as reputable, cross and re-cross the room to the sound of musical instrument, I see no harm. I tried for a long while to see harm in it. I could not see any harm in it. I never shall see any harm in that. Our men need to be kept young, young for many years longer than they are kept young. Never since my boyhood days have I had more sympathy with the innocent hilarities of life than I have now. What though we have felt heavy burdens! What though we have had to endure hard knocks! Is that any reason why we should stand in the way of those who, unstung of life's misfortunes, are full of exhilaration and glee? God bless the young! They will have to wait many a long year before they hear me say anything that would depress their ardor or clip their wings or make them believe that life is hard and cold and repulsive. It is not. I tell them, judging from my own experience, that they will be treated a great deal better than they deserve. We have no right to grudge the innocent hilarities to the young.

As we go on in years let us remember that we had our gleeful times; let us be able to say, "We had our good times." Let us willingly resign our place to those who are coming after us. I will cheerfully give them everything—my house, my books, my position in society, my heritage. After twenty, forty, fifty years we have been drinking out of the cup of this life, do not let us begrudge the passing of it that others may take a drink. But while all this is so, we can have no sympathy with sinful indulgences, and I am going to speak in regard to some of them, though I should tread on the long train of some popular vanities.

What are the dissipation of social life to-day, and what are the dissipation of the ball room? In some cities and in some places reaching all the year round, in other places only in the summer time and at the watering places. There are dissipation of social life that are cutting a very wide swath with the sickle of death, and hundreds and thousands are going down under these influences, and my subject in application is as wide as Christendom. The whirlpool of social dissipation is drawing down some of the brightest craft that ever sailed the sea—thousands and tens of thousands of the bodies and souls annually consumed in the conflagration of ribbons.

Social dissipation is the abettor of pride, it is the instigator of jealousy, it is the sacrificial altar of health, it is the defiler of the soul, it is the avenue of lust and it is the curse of every town on both sides of the sea. Social dissipation. It may be hard to draw the line and say that this is right on the one side and that it is wrong on the other side. It is not necessary that we do that, for God has put a throne in every man's soul, and I appeal to that throne to-day. When a man does wrong he knows he does wrong, and when he does right he knows he does right, and to that throne which Almighty God lifted in the heart of every man and woman I appeal.

As to the physical ruin wrought by the dissipation of social life there can be no doubt. What may we expect of people who work all day and dance all night? After a while they will be thrown on society nervous, exhausted imbeciles. These people who indulge in the suppers and the midnight revels and then go home in the cold unwrapped of limbs, will after a while be found to have been written down in God's eternal records as suicides, as much suicides as if they had taken their life with a pistol, or a knife, or strychnine.

How many people have stepped from the ball room into the graveyard! Consumptions and swift neuralgias are close on their track. Amid many of the glittering scenes of social life, diseases stand right and left and balance and chain. The breath of the sepulchre floats up through the perfume and the froth of death's lips bubbles up in the champagne. I am told that in some of the cities there are parents who have actually given up housekeeping and gone to boarding houses that they may give their time illimitably to social dissipation. I have known family after family blasted in that way in one of the other cities where I preached. Father and mother turning their back upon all quiet culture and all amenities of home leading forth their entire family in the wrong direction. Annihilated, worse than annihilated—for there are some things worse than annihilation. I give you the history of more than one family when I say they went on in the dissipation of social life until the father dropped into a lower style of dissipation, and after awhile the son was tossed out into society a nonentity, and after awhile the daughter eloped with a French dancing-master, and after awhile the mother, getting on further and further in years, tries to hide the wrinkles but fails in the attempt, trying all the arts of the belle, an old flirt, a poor miserable butterfly without any wings.

Oh, how many of you have floated far away from God through social dissipation, and it is time you turned. For I remember that there were two vessels on the sea, and in a storm. It was very, very dark, and the two vessels were going straight for each other, and the captains knew it not. But after awhile the man on the look-out saw the approaching ship and shouted, "Hard a-larboard!" and from the other vessel the cry went up, "Hard a-larboard!" and they turned just enough to glance by and passed in safety to their harbors. Some of you are in the storm of temptation and you are driving on and coming toward fearful collisions unless you change your course. Hard a-larboard! Turn ye, turn ye, for "why will ye die, oh, house of Israel?"

A NARROW ESCAPE! How it Happened.

The following remarkable event in a lady's life will interest the reader: "For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I couldn't sweep a room without sitting down and resting; but, thank God, by the help of New Heart Cure all that is past and I feel like another woman. Before using the New Heart Cure I had taken different so-called remedies and been treated by doctors without any benefit until I was both discouraged and disgusted. My husband bought me a bottle of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, and am happy to say I never regretted it, as I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. I weighed 125 pounds when I began taking the remedy, and now I weigh 105. Its effect in my case has been truly marvelous. It far surpasses any other medicine I have ever taken or any benefit I ever received from physicians."—Mrs. Harry Starr, Pottsville, Pa., October 12, 1892.

REED'S DIZZY RIDE.

A Runaway Team on a Steep Mountain's Rocky Side.

"Did you ever experience the sensation of a wild runaway behind a span of cayuses down a steep mountain road, with walls almost perpendicular below, extending 300 to 700 feet?" That was the nightmare question propounded by Fred R. Reed, the Yakima-Toppen-Prosser rustler. He was in dead earnest for once in his life. Then he told of a dash he took five or six weeks ago down the Horse Haven mountains, south of Prosser: "The trace of one of the cayuses became unfettered and the swingletree struck the animal a rap in some mysterious manner. They started a kicking match. As hard and fast as one of the cayuses kicked the other would do just a little better. They started to run about the same time. And how they did go! Whizzing down the road, the wheels striking boulders, the animals squealing and snorting, the hack rattling like a cartload of dry bones going through a sausage mill—with all these things transpiring simultaneously, I felt as if I might at any moment be transferred from horse heaven to the heaven of man. I pulled and heaved and see-sawed, but on the wild beasts charged. I was fairly leaning back on the lines. Suddenly I found myself tumbling and rolling down a grade. Half dazed, I looked and saw my team still spinning away. My lines had broken and let me fall backward out of the hack. It was lucky for me, too, because the team eventually smashed the hack into splinters and almost killed themselves. I was laid up two days."

DUNMOW.

And Its Famous Prize for the Happiest Couple.

The name Dunmow, in association with a fitch of bacon, long ago passed into a proverbial expression.

The Dunmow fitch is referred to by Chaucer in such a way as to prove that the custom was well known in his day, and a superficial examination of the published accounts of it is sufficient to show it was not a senseless or unmeaning custom, but that it was established at an early date for the encouragement of domestic virtue.

The festival of 1894 was held August 1, in the presence of nearly 5,000 spectators, many of whom had journeyed from London expressly to witness the historical trial. Two couples applied for the bacon, and their claims, after due inquiry, having been adjudged good they were carried in old chairs to the platform, where kneeling on sharp stones placed there for the purpose, the oath was administered and the fitches were handed to the claimants. The jury was composed of six maidens and six young bachelors. After the trial the new operatic cantata, "Ye Dunmow Fitch," was performed by a choral and orchestral company, under the conductorship of Mr. Daughtry, of the Sheffield Telegraph, the composer of the piece.

Several other people were seriously injured, but it is thought none will die.

Malarial Poison

Results from atmospheric conditions, unclean premises, imperfect ventilation and more frequently from the deadly SEWER GAS. A general rundown and impoverished condition of the blood causes, and if not corrected, Catarrh, Bronchitis, and even Consumption may be the result. S. S. S. promptly corrects all these evil effects.

Mr. J. A. Rice, Ottawa, Kan., writes: For three years I was troubled with Malaria, which caused my appetite to fail, and I was so reduced in flesh, that life lost its charms. I tried mercurial and potash remedies, but could get no relief, then decided to try S. S. S. A few bottles of this wonderful medicine made a complete and permanent cure, and I now enjoy better health than ever.

THE HUB. : THE HUB.

A POLICY -

Not Fluctuating or Spasmodic.

This store grows day by day in its value to the shoppers of Janesville and vicinage for scores of miles around, because it is governed by a few tried and true principles to which we steadily adhere.

- FIRST—The goods must be right to be permitted within our doors.
- SECOND—The goods must be here when advertised.
- THIRD—The goods must be square in all respects with the advertisement.
- FOURTH—Nothing must be said in any advertisement that is not true through and through.
- FIFTH—The prices must be down to the bottom always.

It makes no difference what others say about goods or what others get for them. At this store the aim is straight for one point, viz:---To get the best and give it at the right rate---as low or lower than any other house in the city. Anything short of the top in

EXTENT OF STOCK,
EXCELLENCE OF SERVICE,
ENDEAVORS FOR IMPROVEMENT

would never do at this establishment.

THESE CRISP BITS ARE TIME-SAVERS

NEWS OF THE DAY IN BRIEF FORM.

By Running Your Eye Down This Column You Find Out What Is Happening In All Parts Of the Bower City—Short Super-Time Songs.

CHAIRMAN W. T. VANKIRK, of the republican county committee, received a telegram this morning from Chairman Thom, saying that Senator Spooner would certainly be in Janesville and open the campaign on Saturday night, October 6. Friday evening the Young Men's Republican club will meet and make final arrangements as to attending the meeting.

NEVER abuse the confidence of the people. When you promise them anything, great or small, give it to them just as you agree. For instance nine tons of coal out of every ten that have been sold this summer was sold on a guaranteed price, and every dealer that refuses to pay back the fifty cents a ton is practically stealing it from his customers. Come and see me and get your fifty cents a ton on coal or wood. J. H. Gateley.

COAL, all sizes, $6.50 per ton until further notice. All parties having purchased their winter coal from us will be refunded 50 cents a ton in coal or wood so as to make their coal cost $6.50 per ton. Janesville Coal Company, J. H. Gateley, Manager.

OCCASIONALLY we sell a "wheeled instrument," but all we do sell give entire satisfaction, and a person has no worry about somebody buying as good for the same money. Janesville Carriage works.

Do not judge of the prices of watches by what prevailed one, two or three years ago. Let A. F. Hall & Co. "the reliable jewelers" show you how little money will buy a pretty fine time keeper.

If we bought those cobbler seat rockers, regular, that is paid as much as others pay we could not sell for $1.45, but we bought a carload of different chairs, cheap. Frank D. Kimball.

DELEGATIONS from Edgerton, Beloit, Whitewater, Milton Junction and Evansville will attend the Hokey Pokey club party Friday night. This club seems to have "go" enough to insure a good time to all who attend.

PIANO scarfs, the finest ever shown in Janesville, at factory prices the remainder of this week at D. W. Koller's, the west side jeweler, where the world renowned Colby piano can be seen.

We must move November 1. We will not move piles of goods, unless we cannot sell them. We want the cash, we are sacrificing several departments. Bort, Bailey & Co.

Mrs. M. E. WOODSTOCK wishes to announce that she will give a grand millinery opening, Wednesday afternoon and Thursday October 3 and 4. All are cordially invited.

OUR No. 4 coal is the cream of all the other sizes. We sell nine tons of it to one ton of chestnut. Come and see it. Janesville Coal Company; J. H. Gateley, manager.

Do you read our advertisements? Do you believe what we say? We will convince you that we are right and will make good any statement we make. Brown Bros.

Just received—another lot of those sterling silver turquoise rings, the latest out in the jewelry line, only 50 cents each. See our show window—F. C. Cook & Co.

A BICYCLE ball at the armory October 10 will be a pleasant feature of the wheelmen's meet. Janesville boys are sparing no pains to entertain their visitors handsomely.

LADIES genuine hand turned shoes, cannot be bought any other place in the city for less than $1. We cut them in two, $2. Lloyd & Son, 57 W. Milwaukee street.

THE Buck Mountain Leigh coal; all sizes. Nut, No. 4, range and egg, $6.50 per ton. Bring in your orders. Janesville Coal Co; J. H. Gateley, manager.

Those who have tried our Monarch tea say it is genuine, no other like it in Janesville, 50 cents a pound, with handsome silverware for nothing. Dunn Bros.

OUR number is 123 West Milwaukee street; our telephone 179. We never try to sell you something we haven't. Satisfaction or money refunded. Dunn Bros.

That silverware and Monarch tea go well together. We sell the tea at fifty cents a pound and give you the silverware for buying it. Dunn Bros.

It is safe to say from the arrangements now being made, that the Hokey Pokey club party Friday night, will be a society event of the season.

ALVA RUSSELL and Charles Jenkins returned home last evening from Cedar Lake, where they have been spending a few weeks hunting and fishing.

APPOINTMENTS can now be made with Mrs. J. B. Day for class or private lessons in elocution and physical culture. 101 South Third street.

THE Court Street Mission Circle meets at Mrs. Loomis' No. 1 Locust street, tomorrow afternoon, at three o'clock. Election of officers.

We are the friends of the rich and the poor. Come and see our soft coal $2 to $7 delivered. Janesville Coal Co. J. H. Gateley, Manager.

COMPLETE your sets of World's fair views. Memorials of the great ex-sposition are treasures to be guarded jealously, and in no way can they be recalled as vividly as by well-executed pictures. Call at the Gazette office for Shepp's series. A few complete sets may still be had.

An Old Story Improved.

A prominent banker in Sydney was holding forth on his early life. "How did I get my first start in life?" he exclaimed. "Why, one day I picked up a pin"—"Oh! that game's played out," was the cry. "I picked up a pin," the banker continued, "a diamond pin, which I pawned for $50, and after giving 10 'bobs' to charity, to change my luck, I began my career as a money-lender with the other $49 10s. To-day, after thirty years' hard labor, I am a millionaire, and to celebrate the event have just given 10s more to charity."

BOAT HIT A STUMP AND IS ON BOTTOM

ENTERPRISE GOES DOWN IN SHALLOW WATER.

Coming Down the River in the Dense Fog the Pilot Became Confused and Struck an Obstacle—Water Filled the Boat and Put Out the Fires.

The steamer Enterprise struck a submerged stump at the big bend this side of Crystal Springs park yesterday morning, and now lies on the bottom of the river. The accident occurred yesterday morning during the dense fog. Captain Buchholz was steering to the city, intending to take an early train for Milwaukee. The fog was so dense that the pilot could not see either shore, and consequently could not tell exactly where he was. When the boat struck the hidden stump she was moving slowly, and was easily backed off. Not mistrusting that anything serious had occurred, the pilot kept on his course down the stream. A moment later Herman Buchholz notified his father that the boat was leaking badly; next the fires were extinguished by the water rushing into the hold. Then they resolved to run her ashore, but before they had fairly swung around, the boat struck the bottom, and then she was abandoned for a time. The water being shallow, the boys worked hard today trying to raise the boat and tow her back to Crystal Springs dock. She is not much injured and will probably be floated tonight.

FABULOUS TREASURES.

A Dinner Set That Is Really too Good to Eat Off.

England's collection of plate for use on state occasions at Windsor castle is something fabulous in value. Its display surprised even Russia's crown prince himself. It is generally reckoned to be worth about $2,000,000; and it is no unusual thing for a state banquet at the castle to have plate to the value of half a million in the room. There are two state dinner services, one of gold and one of silver. The gold service was purchased by George IV., and will dine 120 persons. The plate alone of this service cost over $12,000. On state occasions there are usually placed on the dining table some very beautiful gold flagons, captured from the Spanish armada, which are now, of course, of priceless value, while the great silver wine cooler made by Rudell & Bide for George IV., and weighing 7,000 ounces, always adorns one corner of the apartment. As sideboard ornaments there are pretty trifles in the way of a peacock of precious stones, valued at $50,000, and a tiger's head from India with a solid ingot of gold for its tongue and diamond teeth.

HE DREW THE LINE.

The Boy Was All Right But He Had to Be Sent to School.

"I have a boy who is going to be shipped away to a boarding school just as soon as he is old enough for his mother to give her consent," said a board of trade man with some feeling a day or two ago. "He is only 5 years old now, but he is too observing and too ready with his tongue. He casts aspersions upon his father's habits that are unjust and uncalled for."

"You see, it was just this way: The baby has bright red cheeks, and so her mother has given her a pet name of Rosy Cheeks. It is very pretty, and I was wont to smile and feel proud as the mother and baby played together. But it is all changed now. The boy took up the pet name industriously and thought he would improve upon it. He tried his improvement last night."

"Hullo, Rosy Cheeks!" he suddenly exclaimed to the baby. "How's Rosy Cheeks?"

"Every one smiled and encouraged him in his pleasantry, so he tried the next feature."

"Hullo, Rosy Lips!" he cried to his mother, and of course she showed her pleasure.

"Hullo, Rosy Nose!" he yelled, suddenly turning to me. And that is why he is going away. I have got to draw the line somewhere."

DR. HALSEY NOT GOING TO OHIO

Entirely Satisfied With His Assignment to the Janesville Church

The Rev. Sabin Halsey says he is well satisfied with his assignment to the pastorate at Janesville and that there is no probability of his going to Akron, O., although the people there have strongly urged him to accept a call. He says the Akron people first sent him a call about three weeks ago and he would have been very glad to go to Akron, as it is a very important point, but while the people were still urging him he did not think the bishop would care to transfer him so soon after assigning him to Janesville. He considers that Janesville has one of the most cultured churches in the state and he expects he will be highly pleased with his location "here, although he did not dream before the conference that he would be sent to Janesville. The Akron church pays a salary of $3,500 and has a membership of 1,200.

COUNTY FARM SOLD FOR $10,800

Johnstown Land and Buildings Transferred to Peter McFarlane.

Peter McFarlane has bought the old county poor farm in Johnstown, the price paid being $10,800. This includes 218 acres of land and all the buildings. Five hundred dollars cash was paid, the balance to be paid in thirty days, on the delivery of the deed. When the attempt was made last spring to sell the farm, the price agreed upon was $11,000; but since then the county has realized on the growing crops and has made a profit in that way of about $700.

DIVORCED FROM A DRINKING MAN

Catherine Hayes Granted a Legal Separation From Her Bifidulous Swain.

The ardent love for intoxicating drink cost John Hayes his wife and three hundred and fifty dollars in money. His wife, Catherine Hayes, appeared before Judge Bennett with a petition asking for divorce and alimony, testifying that her husband was a habitual drunkard. There being no contradictory evidence the judge granted the divorce, also directing that John pay Catherine $350 as alimony and cost of proceedings.

Depends on the Audience.

The Flints were at the Grand last evening. They were greeted with a large audience, but only gave part of a performance. The rock-breaking act was done in part, everything being all right except that the fellow who swung the sledge was not heavy enough. Professor Flint says it requires about a 2,000-pound blow. It took four men to place the huge rock upon Miss Flint, who was suspended between two chairs, but she held it. Hard blows were dealt, but the 400-pound monster would not break. The same performance will be given again to-night. Professor Flint said to-day: "We propose to give a full and complete performance in Janesville, but will not do so until we can get twenty good citizens as volunteers on the stage. We have no agents or mediums scattered through the audience. Our work is all clear and above board. We will try tonight again, and if we can get twenty people up there, we will give one of the best shows ever given in the city. We will amuse all, and do it scientifically. It all depends upon the audience."

Millinery.

And to the gentler sex what an attraction is there in that single word! Miss O'Neil and two trimmers have been in the markets of Cleveland and Chicago for two weeks, and the result of their efforts is seen in the superb line of pattern hats (exclusive styles) that are now shown in this department. To-day the large center window contains a showing of the most extensive line of up-to-date millinery and millinery novelties it has ever been our pleasure to display. A competent corps of assistants insures to the ladies perfect satisfaction on any orders that may be intrusted. Right ideas on everything that pertains to millinery, at easy figures.

AN EAST SIDE BLOCK AS A CITY HALL SITE

C. T. WILCOX PROPERTY HAS BEEN SUGGESTED.

J. J. R. Pease and Others See Strong Points of Advantage in the Location—Horse Property Would Go With It—No Building For the Present.

Charles T. Wilcox received propositions today for the leasing of his land by men who have an important project in mind. The idea is to offer the city the Wilcox property between Court street and the river for a city hall site. Dr. William Horne's lot directly in the rear would go with it.

The nearness to the court house is mentioned as one recommendation.

J. J. R. Pease is one of the men interested, the project having struck him from the first as very feasible. There would be ample room for city hall, municipal court and public library, it is urged, and the city could get the property much cheaper than it could any other available site.

There will be no building done on the property until the disposition of the lots has been decided upon.

Not As Good In the City.

We have just learned of four people who went to Chicago to have their eyes fitted with glasses. Two of them were cases that our optician, W. F. Hayes, had fitted and after the city optician examined their eyes he told them "he could not improve the fit and that the glasses adjusted by Prof. Hayes were perfect in every detail and that really they had no use, whatever, for glasses," which is just what Prof. Hayes told them. The others were without glasses and were fitted while in Chicago, but we received a letter from one of them the other day, making a date with Professor Hayes to examine and fit glasses to her eyes, as she says the glasses she received in Chicago don't work well.

These are only a few of the many proofs we can furnish as to Prof. Hayes' ability as an optician, and that he is second to no optician in the United States. F. C. Cook & Co.

The Car Cure.

We do not know, but we strongly suspect that our electric railways are encouraging the car cure. In fact, Europeans are gravely discussing the effects of electric railways on rheumatism, and many sufferers take the car cure with regularity and supposed benefit. They get as near the motor as possible and cast longing eyes on the trolley. As a noted and eminent English physician gave as the result of his life's observation "that fully two-thirds of the ailments of humanity were purely imaginary," we can readily see how the car cure for rheumatism is very efficacious.

A Globe of Fish.

It is asserted that the species of fish known by the common name of herring are the most prolific of all the denizens of the ocean. According to figures deduced by the British fish warden, a single pair (could their eggs escape harm) would become the parents of 150,000,000 children in three years; and in twenty years their progeny would be of a bulk equal to that of our world!

THE IRON SHIP.

The fabled sea-serpent, old leviathan,
Or else what grisly beast of scaly chine
That clamped the ocean-wreck and swathed
The brine
Before the new and milder days of man
Had never bray nor bray nor swinging fan
Like this iron swimmer of the Clyde or Tyne,
Late born of golden seed to breed a line
Of offspring swifter and more huge of plan.
Straight is her going, for upon the sun
When once she hath looked, her path and place
Are plain.
With tireless speed she smiteth one by one
The shuddering seas and foams along the main,
And her eased breath when her wild race is Run
Roars through her nostrils like a hurricane.

THE FOUNDLING.

Barlow was somewhat late, for an annoying error in posting by an under bookkeeper had detained him at the office. He walked rather more rapidly than usual, for he knew that the major, Simpson and Granger were waiting for him to make the fourth hand in the game of whist which always preceded dinner. Collins was not home, for he had gone to Milwaukee and would not return until the next morning, and Barlow knew that the major was impatiently tapping the table with his fingers and watching the door.

For seven years the five men had lived together, and the whist game before dinner was one of the household habits which had fastened itself upon the little community as a vital element of its placid existence. The men were all past middle age, and any digression from the routine jarred the entire domestic machinery for the time. Dinner was always served at 7 o'clock, and Barlow felt more than guilty, for it was not only nearly 6 o'clock, but the afternoon was the Saturday half holiday, and he should have been home several hours earlier.

He increased his pace when he turned into the street which for three blocks was the bottom of an architectural canyon, its sides formed of solid rows of houses each exactly like the other. As he approached the center house of the middle block he felt for his latchkey and drew it from his pocket when he turned to ascend the steps. The key dropped from his hand, and he fell back a pace, for cooing at him from the corner of the little porch a baby stretched its chubby arms toward him and smiled when the key jingled on the stone step.

Barlow's first thought was that he had taken the wrong steps, and he steadily stared at the number painted on the transom. The number was right, and he rapidly checked it off with the familiar window curtains and the doormat. The major's burly form came into view through the window, and then Barlow concentrated his attention on the baby. It cooed gently and made an effort to crawl down the steps.

"Hold on; you'll hurt yourself," cried Barlow as the baby leaned perilously over the edge of the doorstep. The little one looked up and smiled again, and then for the first time in his memory Barlow held a baby in his arms.

For several minutes he stood looking up and down the street, but no one came to help him. He pressed the baby to him as he stooped for his key, and opening the door walked into the sitting room with the baby under his arm as though it was a laundry bundle.

"Hello, you're here at last," said the major, loosening the belt of his dressing gown and reaching for a deck of cards. "What kept— Bless my soul, what have you got there?"

The baby kicked its heels and struck out with its arms as though swimming, for Barlow's hand was under its stomach as he held it against his hip. Simpson dropped the evening paper and stared at the baby with his mouth open. Granger forgot the blazing match which he was holding over his pipe bowl, and it burned to his fingers as he gazed blankly at Barlow and the kicking infant.

The oppressive silence was broken by a sudden cry from the baby, and the major caught it by one leg just in time to save it from striking the floor, for Barlow dropped it when the cry came. For a second the major held the baby by its leg, while a series of muffled explosions came from under the clothing, which had fallen over the baby's head. Then he gently lowered the little one to the floor, and all silently watched the strange creature squirm and struggle its way out of the maze of linen and flannel and finally sit up, a red faced, tearful, screaming baby.

Barlow's explanation was incoherent, for he, like the major, Granger and Simpson, was in a state of mental chaos. The baby's screams brought Bob, the colored cook and all around servant, from the dining room, and his black face increased the vigor of the infantile yells and deepened the scarlet hue of its face to a purplish tinge.

A twisted wire brooch which held the little sack at the neck gave the baby's name as "Joey." The major was seized with an inspiration. Snapping his fingers, he said, "Here, Joey, here, here, here," as he used to speak to the only dog he ever owned.

The other men felt an immense admiration for the major, for Joey suddenly stopped crying. The minute of silence seemed an hour to the anxious old bachelors looking down at the tiny stranger.

Joey was strangely quiet. His mouth was wide open, his eyes bulged, and a rattling sound in his throat alarmed Barlow.

"For heaven's sake, get some water. Thump it on the back. Open all the windows. The baby is choking to death." And he dropped on his knees and began beating the baby's back and chest with his palm. A pitcher and glass of water were brought. The windows and doors were thrown open, and the major, wildly excited, swished a newspaper in the baby's face, fanning it frantically. Simpson dashed a glass of water into Joey's eyes and mouth, and the baby, after several gasps, burst out crying and wailing again.

"Jingle some keys at him!" bellowed the major, bobbing his watch up and down six inches from the baby's face. "Talk to him; talk to him. Don't you know some baby talk? Here, Joey, here, here." And the major stopped his roaring and whistled, snapping his fingers. His efforts were futile. Joey cried the louder, and the men left him in the middle of the floor and sat down to a solemn consultation.

"We've got to stop that crying first," said Simpson. "Now, I remember I picked up a woman's paper once in a doctor's office. It had a dozen columns on the care of babies. I'll go to the corner and get some papers and magazines." And Simpson hurried to the corner news store. He returned with his arms full of weekly and monthly literature and found Joey crying at the top of his voice. With nervous haste the men pored over the papers until Barlow's triumphant "Here it is!" brought the others to him.

"Hints to Young Mothers," read Barlow, peering through his spectacles. "If the baby cries without apparent reason, the cause will probably be one of three things—a pin sticking its tender body, the colic or teething. First, search for the pin, for remember the baby cannot talk and tell you where the annoyance is. Remove the clothing gently and rub the hand over the little body. If it is colic, place the baby, stomach down, on your knee and gently pat and rub the hollow of the back. This will soothe the little one. If it is teething, rub the gums briskly but tenderly with the index finger."

When Barlow had finished, the men felt the relief which comes when the enemy is known and visible. The major walked courageously to the baby, puffing his cigar. Granger lit his pipe, and Barlow, repeating "First search for the pin," seated himself on the edge of the chair and received the baby from the major. Joey alternately screamed and gasped, for the major and Granger had filled the room with tobacco smoke, but Barlow and Simpson, with grim deliberation, removed the little shoes and stockings and peeled off the other clothing, until Joey, a chubby, rosy cherub, displayed his physical charms to the intensely interested bachelors. From head to foot the wailing, choking Joey was inspected by the quartet, and not a pin mark was observable.

"It's either colic or teething," said Granger, who had dropped on his knees, with "Hints to Young Mothers" before him. "Place the baby, stomach down, on your knee," he read, "and gently pat and rub the hollow of the back." Catching the naked Joey by the nape of his neck and grasping both feet, Barlow flopped him over and rubbed so energetically that Joey's back grew red, and he squirmed and screamed worse than ever. "It's not colic; it's his teeth," said Granger, who had waited a reasonable time to see the effect of the treatment. "Rub the gums briskly but tenderly with the index finger."

Simpson squatted to the floor on the other side, and thrusting his finger into Joey's mouth rubbed Joey's gums, while Barlow still patted and rubbed the small of Joey's back.

Utterly exhausted, Joey's cries sank to subdued sobs, and finally he became quiet. Barlow held him for half an hour, while Granger, who had been energetically studying the advertisements of infants' food, went to the drug store and brought half a dozen boxes and bottles to Bob, who, carefully following directions, made up half a dozen different brews of lactated food, malted milk and cornstarch preparations. Joey's continued silence gave Barlow and the major confidence, and they managed to clothe him after a fashion. Bob's culinary skill stood him in good stead, for Joey eagerly drank a bowl of prepared food and became so smiling and showed his pretty dimples so effectively that the major picked up his dressing gown and danced vigorously around him.

The belated dinner was eaten in silence, with Joey staring through the folding doors from the center of the sitting room. Then came the perplexing problem of providing suitable sleeping quarters for the little guest. It was voted to put Joey in Collins' bed, and again the "Hints to Young Mothers" was consulted. The oracle said: "For sleep, baby's nightgown should be loose, short and easy. Woolen is preferred."

Granger disappeared when Simpson read this and returned with a light flannel negligee shirt. "We can cut off the sleeves," he said, "and the bottom. It must be short, you know, and loose and woolen and easy."

Joey was too sleepy to protest when Barlow again pulled his clothing from him. The baby was placed in Granger's shirt, and then, escorted by the major, Granger, Simpson and Bob, Barlow carried Joey to Collins' room, and building a nest of pillows laid Joey, now fast asleep, in it.

Joey did not wake all night, but the men took turns watching him until Bob's rising bell awoke the baby. At the same moment Collins entered the house. Then peace fell on the bachelors, for Collins was a widower, and they felt he understood the situation.

"Why didn't you inform the police?" he asked. "Some mother was crazy about this baby last night."

After feeding and dressing Joey, Collins picked him up, went out of the house and slowly walked down the street. He had passed one of the blocks of houses when a woman's scream stopped him, and the next instant Joey was in his mother's arms.

The servant girl was new to the neighborhood. She had placed Joey on the wrong steps and had then chased two small boys who had run away with the baby carriage. When she returned and could not find Joey, she became hysterical, and the family roamed the streets and haunted the police stations all night, with Joey in a bachelor's den a block away.—Chicago Record.

DID NOT LIKE THE BED.

Sarah Offers a Conclusive Reason for Not Buying.

Two maiden ladies walked into a New York furniture store the other day and asked to be shown some chamber suits of reasonable price.

They were tall, thin, prim and sisters.

The salesman showed them an extensive line of bedroom furniture.

At last a suit was reached that pleased one of the women.

"What's the price of this?" she asked.

"Twenty-eight dollars," replied the salesman. "Seven pieces in the set. Made of thoroughly seasoned wood. Everything is first-class about it. You couldn't buy one like it anywhere else in the city for less than $35. It's a bargain."

"It does seem reasonable, Sarah," said the woman who had asked the price of the set.

Sarah walked around the bedstead, scrutinizing it carefully from several points of view, and finally shook her head.

"It don't quite suit me," she said.

They left the store.

When they had reached the sidewalk Mary said:

"Sarah, I think we made a mistake in not taking that suit."

"Do you really believe that?" asked Sarah.

"Yes, it was a bargain."

"But that bedstead, Mary?"

"Well, what about it? I didn't see anything the matter with the bedstead. It was stylish looking and well made, as far as I could see."

"Yes, yes; but it was so low."

"Well, what of that? For my part I like a low bed."

"But, my dear sister," said Sarah, reproachfully, "that bedstead was altogether too low. It would be utterly impossible for a man to crawl un-

Matches.

The first match was the product of the ingenuity of John Frederick Komerer, who early in this century was imprisoned in the penitentiary at Hohenasperg, in Germany. He invented the lucifer-match while in his gloomy dungeon. The German government forbade the manufacture of matches on the ground of public policy, because some children playing with them had caused a fire. Komerer was ruined by Viennese competition when he was released from prison, and died a pauper. Up to 1862 the Vienna manufacturers controlled the match business of the world.

The Judgment Seat.

A high seat called "kursi" is to be found in the courtyard of all well-to-do houses in Cairo and other large towns of the East. It is occupied by the master of the house when deciding domestic affairs. Such seats are never wanting in the courtyard of the houses of the sheikhs, heads of tribes, or of persons in authority. The seat is placed in a shady part of the court, and judgment is delivered from it on matters which are brought for decision by the inhabitants of the district, or by members of the tribe over which the master of the house presides.

"What Durned Nonsense."

"I see," said the man who began life at $3 a week and now owns a block of tenements that haven't seen a bit of paint since they were built, "I see that these here new five dollar silver certificates are to have a lot of angels, and chariots, and clouds, and things engraved on them. What durned nonsense. Why don't they engrave some bacon, and potatoes, and clothes, and champagne wine, and all that sort of thing that $5 can buy, and have some meaning to their designs? That's what I'd like to know."

MOTHERS

And these soon to become mothers, should know that Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription for Female Weakness is the best of all medicines for both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

Mrs. DORA A. GUTHRIE, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "When I began taking your 'Favorite Prescription,' I was not able to stand on my feet without suffering almost death. Now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. I am stronger now than I have been in six years. Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best to take before confinement, or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered as little with any of my children as I did with my last, and she is the healthiest we've got. Have induced several to try 'Favorite Prescription,' and it has proved good for them."

BRIEF BITS OF HUMOR.

A Business Man.

The drummer stepped into a store in a western town, where the proprietor had a stock of guns and musical instruments.

"Isn't this a rather queer combination?" he asked.

"There's money in it to me," replied the proprietor.

"I don't see how."

"That's because you ain't up on our ways."

"Well, put me up."

"It's this way," explained the proprietor. "I sell a man a cornet or banjo or fiddle or something like that, and by the time he has practiced a week his neighbor comes in and buys a shotgun or revolver or something like that, and I get a profit going and coming. See?"

It doesn't take a drummer long to see, and this one was in possession of all his faculties.—Detroit Free Press.

Getting Even.

"You barbers do a heap of talking, don't you?" remarked the inconsiderate man as he took his place in the chair.

"Some of us do," was the answer. "People are always kicking in the comic papers about you having so much to say."

"Well," replied the tonsorial artist, "in some cases I don't blame them."

"Why not?"

"Because it's unquestionably impolite for anybody to make an ostentatious display of superior knowledge."

—Washington Star.

He Didn't Pass Muster.

Tibbles—Did you ever travel in Africa?

Quibble (globe trotter)—Yes. I went there once with my colored valet, who wanted to see where his grandmother lived.

Tibbles—Did he find her?

Quibbles—He found her, but she wouldn't have anything to do with him.

Tibbles—How was that?

Quibbles—Well, the old lady thought he had too much white blood in his veins to be respectable.—Judge.

A Request to Charge.

Judge—How do you account for the fact that the man's watch was found in your pocket?

Prisoner—Your honor, life is made up of inexplicable mysteries, and I trust your honor will so instruct the jury.—Puck.

He Took His Leave.

Actor Friend (inquiring at boarding house)—Has Mr. Comedy taken his departure yet?

"Yes!" snapped the landlady, "but that's all he did take. I've got his wardrobe."—Texas Sittings.

The Usual Answer.

Dora—Men may not think so, but nowadays there are a great many girls who have no intention of ever marrying.

George—Oh, I know it. I've proposed to a dozen of them.—N. Y. Weekly.

Scenting Dangers.

"Why do all men at the club shun Thompson?"

"Thompson's baby is getting old enough to say clever things."—Tid-Bits.

Quite Necessary.

"And—er—what is your name?"

"Bridget O'Sullivan, mum, but shure when I hires out as a French maid I am called Ethel de Montmorency, mum."—Truth.

In the White Mountains.

Fashionable Invalid—I came here for hay fever, you know.

Irrascible Bachelor—Well, you've got it, haven't you?—Life.

Bargains.

"Behold my latest purchase."

"She cried, her face aglow."

"I know it was a bargain."

"Because 'twas labeled so."—Washington Star.

HE MISUNDERSTOOD.

Mr. Blue Island—Pardon me, but do you know which of those mills is Brown's?

Miss Hub (with an impulsive shudder)—Sir! Do I look like a woman born and reared in Chicago? I am a stranger here. I'm from Boston.

Mr. B. I.—O, well, that's all right. I didn't know but you might know a little something, for all that.—Arkansas Traveler.

Repertoire.

Dora—Mr. Castleton said he thought one of us was beautiful, but he didn't say which one.

Cora—You make me blush.—Truth.

Rich.

"Why do you suppose that man said there is a fortune in my face?"

"Oh, Mame, your gold teeth, you know."—Detroit Tribune.

She Soon Gets Tired.

Henpeck—How do you cure a woman of dabbling in woman's rights?

Uptodate—By letting her have them.—N. Y. World.

A Change.

When I was young my wife she called me "darling," "ducky," "sweet."

But nowadays my pet name is:

"Why don't you wipe your feet?"

THE NAMES OF CITIES.

The word Minneapolis is a compound of an Indian word meaning curling water and a Greek word meaning city.

Pittsburg was originally called Fort Du Quesne, then became Fort Pitt, in honor of the great British premier.

Chicago was named from the Chicago river, which in turn took its name from an Indian word meaning place of the wild leek or polecat plant.

St. Louis was named from Louis IX, of France. The name was originally given to his depot and trading station by Pierre Laclède Liguest.

Detroit took its name from the river, which was called by the French De Troit, the narrows. The settlement was originally called Fort Pontchartrain.

Albany is named from the second title of the duke of York, afterward James II. The title is Scottish, from the Celtic word Albyn, a native name for Scotland.

New York was named from the first title of the duke of York, afterward James II., who took the city from the Dutch in 1664. The Dutch called it New Amsterdam.

Boston was originally named Tremont, or Trimountain, from being built on three hills—Beacon, Kopp and Fort hills. In 1630 the court of Charleston ordered the name changed to Boston.

Cincinnati was originally called Lonsantville. The present name was given by General St. Clair as a reminder of the Cincinnati society, an association of the officers of the revolutionary war.

General Francis Nash of the revolutionary army gave a name to Nashville, Tenn. It was first called Nashborough, which was objected to on account of being hard to spell. Nashville was suggested, but Nashville finally accepted in 1784.

Baton Rouge, La., was named from the fact that for many years after the town was established a gigantic cypress, the bark of which was red, grew on the site. The name means red stick, and was bestowed by the French settlers.

Customer—How do you use this insect powder? New Clerk—On the insects, ma'am.

Millions For Defense.

Against the inroads of that subtle, lurking foe to human health, malaria, had been expended uselessly when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters appeared upon the scene and demonstrated its power as a preventive and curative of the dreaded scourge. When the "gold fever" raged in 1849 in California, malaria was contemporaneous with it at the diggings, and wrought dreadful havoc among the miners. Then and subsequently on the Isthmus of Panama, and wherever in the tropics malarial disease is most violent, the Bitters become the recognized safeguard. For the effect of exposure and fatigue, miasmata in air and water, sea sickness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, the Bitters affords prompt relief. Invalids of all sorts will find it fully adequate to their needs.

A Financial Manager.

Mrs. Peterby is a woman with a head for business.

"Just see here. I have bought a beautiful rocking-chair at auction worth $3, and only paid $2 for it; so you see I have $1 clear profit. Don't tell me after this that the women have no business sense."

"Do you need the rocking-chair?" asked Mr. Peterby.

"No."

"Then what did you buy it for?"

"To save money, of course. How could I have saved a dollar if I hadn't bought it, stupid?"—Alex Sweet, in Texas Sittings.

Not Worthy of Him.

She—It cannot be—I am not worthy of you.

He—Nonsense!

"It is true, too true."

"Impossible. You are an angel."

"No, no; you are wrong. I am an idle, silly girl, utterly unfit to become your companion through life."

"This is madness. What sort of a wife do you think I ought to have?"

"A careful, calculating, practical woman who can live on your small salary."—N. Y. Weekly.
